

THE TONGUE

"The boneless tongue, so small as a weak Greek,"
Can crush and kill," declares to Greek.
"The tongue destroys a greater horse than the tongue asserts," than does the sword."
The Persian proverb wisely saith,
"A lengthy tongue, an early death,
Or sometimes takes this form instead—
"Don't your tongue cut off your head."
"The tongue" can speak a word worth a sword."
Say the Chinese, "outstrips the steel."
While Aesop says, "thrusts impart."
The tongue's great storehouse is the heart."
From the bow with the maxim sprang
"Though feet would slip, never let the tongue."
The seer crowns the whole
"Who keeps his tongue does keep his soul."

Book Review

(By K. S. F.)

The Unknown God. Author H. T. Shrigley. Published by The Christopher Publishing House, Boston.

This book represents an expedition or a series of expeditions into the symbolic maze of the Bible, to discover if there are not clues to the riddle of the Universe, our own selves and our destiny. Like nature, humanity is subject to the natural forces of building up and tearing down, and present day history or conditions show little progress in man's spiritual development.

The unknown God is within us for our protection and guidance, and he reveals himself only when we create the condition for him. The book is expounded in its theories with intellectual vigor, and free from any artificial taboos and prohibitions that effectually bar the way to Freedom, Equality and Unity. And is for those who can adjust and adapt themselves to a higher concept of life and methods of attaining it.

Study this book with your Bible for spiritual development.

We In Vinalhaven

"We" met on Tuesday evening with Mary Arnold on Chestnut street. "We" were happy to welcome four new guests and we were particularly indebted to Capt. Ralph Bickford for his contribution of exact factual information about the co-operative efforts of the lobster fishermen in Nova Scotia.

Our attention was called to an article appearing in the September issue of the Atlantic Monthly captioned "In the Valley of Virginia," which magnificently presents the highly developed co-operative society in Rockingham County.

In an effort to obtain facts for further study purposes about Vinalhaven, its people, and its needs "We" have decided to conduct a Social Survey of the island during the month of September.

After the close of the formal discussion meeting we were joined by the young people and Jack Carlson's Orchestra for an hour of song and refreshments.

"We" meet again on Tuesday evening with Mary Arnold firmly believing that an informal discussion of our mutual problems clarifies our understanding of them, knowing that by some concerted action a solution of them will be found.

Our slogan: "The work of each for the weal of all."

Boothbay Playhouse

Monday, Labor Day night, marks the beginning of the celebration of the Boothbay Playhouse is staging for a grand six-night finale of their 1941 season which closes with the last curtain Saturday evening, Sept. 6th.

"Bertha, The Beautiful Type-writer Girl," an old-time comedy meller-dammer, is the play, and an added attraction, staged between the acts, is the Gay Nineties Revue at Mamie's Broadway Gardens with Mamie herself, Queen of the Bowery, as the master of ceremonies.

Such new popular hits as "The Bowery" and "After The Ball Is Over" will be rendered by the Boys and Girls at Mamie's with the audience joining in the singing.

A peanut vendor will be on hand so that the audience may obtain "ammunition" to shoot at the villain. Hissing and booing the villain will not only be allowed but encouraged, and also cheers for the hero.

A Two-Hour Catch

When Harry A. Morse went up to Ontario to visit his brother a fishing trip was in order. And some tip it was—28 miles by auto, 12 by speed boat and 150 by airplane. It takes an Indian three days by canoe and portage to reach the lake where Morse caught his string and the fish would spoil before they could be brought out. Flying gets them out in good condition. The trout which our fisherman is holding is 2 1/4 feet long and weighed 14 pounds—the largest ever caught there. The result of two hours' fishing was 36 trout weighing 100 pounds. "A wonderful country," Harry writes to The Courier-Gazette, and why wouldn't he think so?

North Haven Taxes

Commitment In 1888 Was Quite a Different Affair, With Total of $2509

Times have changed since 1888— which, by the way, was 53 years ago. A North Haven correspondent sends us a copy of the tax commitment made by Assessors Harrison Beveridge, J. W. Wooster and O. S. Waterman to Town Treasurer Henry L. Smith—or his successor in said office. The figures will be read with interest in what is now one of the finest summer resort towns on the Maine coast.

"This certifies that we have assessed upon the polls and estates of the inhabitants of the town of North Haven and estates of non-resident proprietors the sum of $2509.77, being (including $477.77 overlying in assessment) the several sums voted by said town at the annual town meeting held on the 5th day of March past and appears by a certificate of the town clerk, as follows:

Noted to defray town charges,	$1400.00
For support of schools,	650.00
For repairs of highways and bridges,	200.00
To clear roads of snow,	200.00
For Free High School,	55.00
Overlays,	4.77
Total,	$2509.77

And we have committed lists of said assessment to Sidney T. Maker, collector of North Haven, with a warrant in due form of law requiring him to collect and pay the same to Henry L. Smith, treasurer of said town on his successor in said office one-half part thereof on or before the 1st day of Sept. next and the remainder on or before the 14th day of Feb. next."

FALLING APPLES
[For The Courier-Gazette]
There is a sound of apples falling
When the August winds are calling
And the green is turning brown
On the long hills' rugged crown.
There is a sound of apples falling
When the soft night breeze is calling
And the sky is turning light
As the swallows haste in flight.
There is a sound of apples falling
When the song birds cease their calling
And the summer slips away
Like the light of fading day.
There is a sound of apples falling
With the crickets gaily calling
And the woods in banners gay
Turn to greet the Autumn day.

Fields with grasses swaying
Make perspective charm, for
Purple locusts waving
Through meadows pulsing warm.
Masses of brilliant color
Mid-Summer's gifts of grace
In purple's gayest messages
Heaven's gift to human race.
Marshes lush with grasses green
Through the early season seen
Blossom into locusts gay
As the summer wanes away
Cheerful, lustrous, rich in hue
Not too hurried in her grace
Not so easy to efface this lovely
Loosestrie from her place.

Vinalhaven Boy Says He's the Most Popular Soldier In Louisiana Camp

Somewhere on Maneuvers, Aug. 25, Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—
Our first "war" ended last Saturday, and as yet no one knows who won. It was just practice between the 43d and 31st Divisions, and lasted only six days. The big maneuver in which 500,000 men will participate, starts Sept. 2, and continues for 15 days.

Except for the past week our battery has been at the base camp all the time. Here we have two large tents for supplies, and one pup tent for two men each. Showers are also available here about three times a week. In fact, life at the base camp is pastime compared with that in the field.

Last Tuesday we received the order to move out and immediately started to roll. Travel was very slow, due to the intense dust of the dirt roads. We traveled about 15 miles and then pitched camp for the night. Here my work began, as all the food had to be issued at night. It was necessary to go about 30 miles to the railroad, get the food, "break it down," and load it aboard the trucks of the five batteries in our battalion. This work would usually be finished at 5 o'clock, to allow our workers a good night's rest, of one hour. Roll call is at 6 o'clock. Then, in order that we might not go stale, we did guard duty throughout the day.

While on this maneuver we did not pitch tents, but simply crawled under a bush or tree, so as to be ready to move at a moment's notice. It was not uncommon to be rudely awakened by a pig or cow, as Louisiana has open range, and pigs and cattle are everywhere.

One night one of our trucks started out with 400 pounds of ice to deliver to the other batteries. The driver got lost and when he finally reached his destination he had traveled 133 miles instead of 30, and the ice weighed five pounds instead of 400. Another night our commissary truck, while going for food, got on the wrong road and went right into the camp of the enemy. We were captured, but held only for a short time.

I am a great favorite with all types of insects here, and my legs and body are definite proof of this. Without doubt I have at least 100 bites, from the multiple kinds of bugs and insects grown here. Most prominent is the wood tick (so-called) which is red, with a shell back. He simply crawls onto the skin and dies, leaving a red spot. A popular game here is removing these wood-ticks.

A few weeks ago I had the pleasure of meeting Major Corwin H. Olds of the 152d P. A. He is one of the most popular officers in our Division. Incidentally we graduated from U. of M. in the same class, 1938.

As my candle (our means of light are candles) is getting short, I must close.

Martinsville Fair

Sunny Skies and Busy Sales Help Bring Banner Receipts

Perfect weather marked the beginning of a successful day at Martinsville when the Baptist Ladies Sewing Circle held its annual fair Wednesday at the Grange hall. Each year it is looked forward to with great interest and the zeal with which these women work, has inspired others in the community to co-operate.

The tables were artistically decorated in pink and green and presided over by gracious women—first "Aunt Thankful" who for many years has greeted people at the apron table. She was ably assisted by Mrs. Jean Bachelder and this proved to be the banner booth, their receipts being $96.15. A beautiful display of fancy work was seen at the next booth and Elizabeth Harris and Mollie (Henderson) Keene, eagerly added their fine sum of $53.08.

Mrs. Alice Washburn worked untiringly to solicit gifts of any kind for her variety booth and surprised her co-workers by producing a total of $48.65. Willing hands had made and contributed candy and when Helen and Marilyn Hupper counted their cash, they joyfully reported $17.78. Norma (Wall) Lowell smilingly waited on the youngsters at the "Cabs" and there was $8.25 from those nickels. In charge of supper was Miss Lena Harris and Mrs. Gertrude Small, assisted in the kitchen by Mrs. Olivia Verrier, Walter Barter, Montfort Hupper, "Ted" Stimpson and H. Turner.

In the dining room with its snowy white tables and decorations of lovely pastel shades and cut flowers was Mrs. Gertrude McDermott, who greeted and served 224 with the aid of Margaret Simmons, Ethel Coffin, Ethel Stanley, Virginia White, Sylvia Hooper, Rose and Marilyn Hupper and Mrs. Dowling as waitresses. The supper was generously given by local and summer residents and the sum of $94.81 was received.

At the evening entertainment the Knox County Camera Club showed moving pictures which were very interesting to old and young. The net receipts were $35.25. Miss Gertrude Hupper was on the entertainment committee. Mrs. Eliza Wiley was chairman of the fair. Other members were Thankful Harris, Olivia Verrier, Rosa Teale, Jean Bachelder, Lena Harris, Ethel Stanley and Gertrude McDermott. Next week this circle will again begin its sewing and planning for the next annual fair.

The week with relatives in Bowdoinham and Richmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Chase of New Harbor passed last week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Winchenbach.

Miss Celestine Wellman is making a good recovery from illness.

Seafarers' Guides

A Story of New England Lighthouses As Told By Fred C. Green of Boston

Just as so many people refer to Uncle Sam's naval establishment at Kittery, Me., as the Portsmouth Navy Yard, so do they regard as a New Hampshire fixture the final unit in the Maine list of lighthouses, the beacon on that lump of rock known as the Whaleback, which is at the northeasterly side of the outer entrance to Portsmouth Harbor. The conical, gray-granite tower sets on a cylindrical pier of gray granite, which rises directly from the ledge. A conical fog signal tower, painted red, is north of the light and houses a Daboll trumpet. The lantern is 59 feet above high water level and its fixed white light, varied by a white flash every 90 seconds, can be seen by mariners 13 miles at sea. The station was established in 1831 and was rebuilt in 1872.

There are only four beacons along New Hampshire's less than 20 miles of seacoast and the first of them is Portsmouth Harbor light, which really is located in Newcastle. It is situated on Port Point, which is at the southwesterly side of the inner entrance to the harbor, and consists of a white tower with a white foundation. A bell is listed as in place on a small, square, brown, flat-roofed building attached to the light tower. A white dwelling stands near the southwesterly corner of the unfinished fort, which is 320 feet easterly, and a red brick oil house is 95 feet northwest of the tower. The bell is machine-operated. First opened in 1789, the station was rebuilt in 1877. Its fixed white light throws its beam 12 miles from a lantern height of 52 feet.

Little Harbor light is a fixed red lens lantern on the southwesterly end of the breakwater making off from Jaffrey Point, which is the southeasterly point of Great Island, at the northerly side of the entrance to Little Harbor. The lantern is fastened on a red wooden post and a red brick oil house stands near the inner point of the breakwater.

Frost's Point, at the southerly side of the entrance to Little Harbor also sports a breakwater and at its northeasterly end are two fixed white lens lanterns comprising Frost's Point light. They are affixed to a black wooden post, with one lantern vertically above the other.

The light at Isles of Shoals is the only off-shore beacon within the confines of the Granite State and it comes mighty close to being in Maine, as the boundary divides the islands in the group.

The white tower stands on White Island, the most southwesterly of the isles. It is southerly of the entrance to Portsmouth, about 5 1/2 miles off the coast and close to the spots where the submarines Squalus and O-9 made their fatal dives. The book records the tower as standing "alongside the base of old stone tower, surmounted by white, pyramidal bell tower, from which a covered way extends nearly to white dwelling; red brick oil house near end of covered way on southerly side."

The bell is operated mechanically. First lighted in 1821 and rebuilt in 1859, the tower's height places the lantern 82 feet above high water, from where its flashing, alternately red and white warning, is visible 14 1/2 miles.

We are in Massachusetts waters now and I can say with authority that some of the beacons in my old list are not now in existence. First of the lot mentioned are the range lights at Salisbury Beach, for the benefit of mariners entering the Merrimack River. This notation is made in italics: "The channel is constantly changing."

Since the jetties were installed at either side of the mouth of the river, these lights have passed. A bell buoy off the jetties now serves as a guide. The outer light was fixed red and the inner fixed white, both of the post lantern type. They were established in 1801 and rebuilt in 1906.

The Memory Man

Of All Things What Yer Suppose He's Up To?—Writing His Biography

(by Tree Member)

I don't let slight errors, misprints, etc., bother me much but I feel that the glaring error in my sketch—issue of Aug. 2—should be given a rehash. Jim Gardener was a brother—let the son-of Ben Gardener. The children of Ben Gardener were Warren, Charles, Jonathan and their sister, Hattie, now the wife of Aubyn Wiley of Brook.

A Jay See wants me to add a few children to the family of John Erskine. He says I should mention the youngest son Johnnie and at least one daughter. I knew Johnnie but skipped him. Don't recall the daughter. Also, A. Jay See says I should have mentioned Walter Lane and three or four daughters in the family of Phil Lane. (I never met Walter or the daughters and naturally, couldn't mention them.) I did, however, know Phil Lane's wife. Think her name was Sarah. Also, I seem to recall that Phil did have at least one daughter who married Manfred Smith.

The main thing that should be considered if and when my sketches are read, is that they consist of "casual" memories. I jot down names, items and other things as I remember them while I brushed elbows with people and things as I jogged along through life from kid days to the present. I lay no claim to having a good memory and sometimes a name eludes me, unless I knew the party well. E. H. Philbrick supplied the name "John" as the Mr. Larrabee I mentioned in a previous sketch—Thanks, E. H.

A. Jay See paid me a fine compliment in a recent issue of The Courier-Gazette but I hardly expect to get in the same squared circle with the Maine Register or Eaton's History. Those works were compiled from careful inquiry and many months of (in many cases) house to house canvassing. People don't care to have their names included correctly given, of course, and I don't intend to get names and people jumbled up, but, if I do fail to be as accurate as I wish—please pardon. I jot down things and names as I remember them without reference to historical data.

I think it would be a fine thing if we all wrote, sometime before we jump into eternity, sketches of our lives so that those who follow us can know something of them. I know that I would be willing to pay quite a price for personally written records of the lives of my parents. I always try to practise what I preach and I am not writing a sketch of my own life. Part I covers pretty well "from infancy to 21" and Part two will deal with the years "From 21 to 72."

The idea was given me by a lifelong friend. At first I laughed, and refused to even consider it, but after a time, I found that the idea persisted and began to give it serious consideration, not, as my friend suggested, with the idea of having it printed as memoirs, but as a sort of record for my relatives and friends. Strange as it may seem, considering the material presented in previous sketches, and many yet to come, in The Courier-Gazette series, the sketch of my life contains incidents, experiences, etc., not touched on in these sketches. I am having fun writing the stuff and feel sure that the labor and time it costs me will be well repaid by the interest and information they will bring into the lives of any who may care to peruse the record.

With my wife and daughter, my poultry, garden, a wonderful view and a clear conscience, life is peaceful here in our little Igloo on the hill except when I get time to bang this word machine for an hour or two. At such times I allow my flowing white hair to wave in the wind as I wander aimlessly along Memory Lane and snatch a thought at random to jot down—quaking with fear the while lest A. Jay See sneak up on me and whang me a clout with the Maine Register or Eaton's History, or sumpp'n.

Our peaceful life is pleasantly ruffled by quite some callers but we are doubly pleased when some of our old friends from Rockland and vicinity hunt us up and chat about people and things.

Our hearts were gladdened recently by a call from Oscar Wooster and his wife—accompanied by Mr. Curtis—a remarkably well preserved man of 87 years. Oscar happens to be one of my nephews and we had a grand time. First time I have seen him for 25 years. Oscar and wife have raised three fine sons, Charles, Henry and Kendall. Henry is the well known "Butch" Wooster, who has made quite a name for himself in the game of fistiana. Oscar used to rattle with a bass tuba in the boys' band but says he gave it up years ago. Oscar is doing defense work at the Snow shipyard.

Oscar's brother, Ansel, is also employed there. Unlike Oscar, Ansel is still in the band game. He plays in the alto section of the Rockland City band and I had a brief talk with him at the Belfast City Park band concert recently.

I sometimes wonder how many of the members of the old boys' band are still playing. Many of the former members have passed on and, no doubt, many more gave up band work, but I know a few of them stuck to the game.

Frank Young and Bob Stevens are two of them. Jimmie Gray, Don Clark, Atwood Smith, Alvin Drake, Charlie Rose, Earl Wilson, Carl Flint, Earl Young, Malcolm Smith, Chester and Ernest Munro, Avard Richen, Francis Havenner, Joe Shaw, Fred Sherman, Elmer Ames and 15 or 20 more whose names I do not recall just at the moment. Some living, some still playing, some are gone. Life is like that. Let us enjoy life while we have it. Live and let live.

According to the Census, one-fourth of the states' budgets is allotted for school expenditures, and another fourth goes for charities.

Chester Jones Found

Chester Jones, an aged Waldoboro resident, whose whereabouts has been unknown for two months, has been located at Mrs. Gunning's Hospital in Pittston, according to information received this morning by the town authorities in Waldoboro. Mr. Jones was found in Saco some time ago, and taken to the hospital in that city, later being removed to Pittston. While a patient here, he endeavored to conceal his name, but a chance remark heard by a Rockland woman established his identity.

The Maine State Employment Service announces that it has orders for an unlimited number of men to work as potato pickers in Aroostook County. The work is to start very soon and there are two schedules of pay, one rate per barrel allowing board and room and the other allowing the pickers a higher rate per barrel and having to furnish their own subsistence. Applications should be made at once at the Rockland office.

Mr. and Mrs. George Higgins are entertaining Freeman Herrick Camp and Auxiliary, S.W.V. and Ralph Ulmer Camp of Rockland Sunday at their cottage at Spruce Head. The hosts will furnish fish chowder and coffee. Those attending will take own dishes and picnic lunch.

A "SWEEPER" ON TRIAL

No, this is not a battleship; it is one of the mine sweepers built for the U. S. Navy by Snow Shipyards, Inc., the picture being taken from a very close range during her standardization runs on the Rockland trial course Thursday morning. Again Snow's scored when the inspecting officials found her to be perfect in every respect as have been her two predecessors, the Roller and Skimmer, which are now in service with the fleet. The boat from which this photograph was taken was less than 25 feet from the bow of the minesweeper which was under full speed. Snow-built mine sweepers are joining the fleet with an amazing regularity and are proving staunch craft, well built and good on performance.

NEW ACTIVITY AT CEMENT PLANT

The Lawrence Portland Cement Company will start fires in the second rotary kiln tomorrow, recent defense orders having depleted the reserve stock. Vapor from both chimneys is a spectacle that has not been seen in a long time, but a most welcome one, in that it spells added prosperity for all concerned.

The Atlantic Fisherman, trade magazine of the fishing industry, printed at Goffstown, N. H., this month carries a story on the delivery of two draggers, the John G. Murley and the Harriet N. Eldridge, to their owners at New Bedford, Mass., last month, from the yards of the Morse Boatbuilding Company at Thomaston. Over 5000 people greeted the two fishing craft as they made port on a Sunday afternoon, having sailed from the builder's yards the preceding afternoon. The number of Morse built boats in New Bedford and Gloucester is growing rapidly with three more on the ways at Thomaston and one in the fitting out dock.

The converted Bay of Pundy steamer, Robert G. Cann of St. John, N. B., now used as a tug, is tied up at Tilsen wharf waiting for the barge Pottstown to be discharged of a load of gypsum for the Lawrence Portland Cement Company at Railroad Wharf. She is one of the Cann fleet which has operated in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick waters for several years and is 126 feet in length.

Capt. Clarence Bennett landed 12,000 redfish at the P. J. O'Hara wharf yesterday. The Queen of Peace and the Iva M. are expected to dock over the week-end with the possibility that the Boston College may be routed here instead of to Portland this trip.

Spruce Head's "midnight marauders" have failed to surrender their loot. Meantime many solicitous inquiries at the Inn.

The Salvation Army is conducting a tag day today to raise funds for the winter relief.

The barge Robert McCracken is loading fluoxstone at the Syndicate Wharf after having discharged a cargo of coal at the Rockland Coal Company.

There will be no meeting of Knox Lodge I.O.O.F. Monday night.

The Kiwanis Club meeting is to be postponed until Tuesday night next week, due to Labor Day.

Edward G. Williamson, Jr., who has been employed by Twitchell-Champlin in Portland is home for a few days before enlisting in the Army.

The telephone building on School street is under repairs.

He Has Hobbies

Poems and Vegetable Gardens Loom Large In Rev. A. M. Watts' Busy Career

The editorial department was made happy yesterday by visits from Rev. A. M. Watts, a Vermont pastor who formerly preached at North Haven, and who is now making his annual visit with his brother, John R. Watts at Tenant's Harbor.

Mr. Watts graduated from Colby College in 1903, and four years later from Newton Theological Seminary. He taught school one year after leaving Colby, but the ministry was destined to be his life's mission. It was 30 years ago that he located in North Haven for a pastorate which lasted two and one-half years. And then in succession came pastorates in Woodland (Aroostook County), Rumney, N. H., Horton Mills, Vt., and Dixfield, Quebec, where he laid claim to be an international pastor by virtue of having charges on opposite sides of the border; Westford, Vt., where he had charge of the Federated Church (Baptist, Methodist and Congregationalist) 13½ years; and pastor for the past five years of the Federated Church (Baptist and Congregationalist) in Jamaica, Vt.

He used to enjoy telling his parishioners how it was in his native town of St. George—First Church, Second Church and Third Church, but all of the Baptist denomination. The picture has changed somewhat since he left, for there is now an Advent Church with settled pastor, in Port Clyde; and an Episcopal Chapel at Long Cove. The political situation has also altered since Mr. Watts left St. George, for whereas the run of the mine was made up almost wholly of Democrats, the town now frequently goes Republican.

Mr. Watts, besides being a successful preacher has two outstanding hobbies. One is poetry. During a recent call upon Mrs. Davis of Thomaston (one of his former teachers) he was reminded of a poem—his first—which he wrote on the occasion of a prominent citizen's death. He was then 14 years of age, and he has been writing poetry ever since, how good may be judged by the readers of this newspaper to which he has contributed more than 200 poems over a long period of years. He has also contributed 175 poems to that excellent Vermont newspaper the Burlington Free Press.

In the Aug. 21st issue of the Free Press appeared this communication under the caption "Early New England Visitors":

"For the sake of the 'accuracy of statement' in which Lena L. Severance of Isle Le Motte in her letter of Aug. 16 is interested let me correct her little error in saying that 'Champlain and his two French companions were the first Europeans to set foot on New England soil 11 years before sailing of the 'Mayflower.' She meant Vermont soil, for 13 years before the landing of the Pilgrims, Aug. 29, 1607, Popham's expedition landed on Monhegan Island, Me., and then went on to establish a temporary settlement at the mouth of the Kennebec river. And two years before that, May 15, 1605, Capt. George Weymouth landed on that same island, which lies just south of Rockland, Me., where President Roosevelt landed last Saturday, and two days later Weymouth landed in the present town of St. George, Me., planted a garden and explored the St. George river that figures in the first chapters of Ben Ames Williams' 'Come Spring' and of Kenneth Roberts' 'Trending Into Maine.' And the year before that, 1604, Champlain himself discovered the St. Croix river on the eastern boundary of Maine and established a temporary colony there under the leadership of his companion, De Monts, on an islet not far from Campobello Island, the Summer home of President Roosevelt."

From which it will appear that Mr. Watts had no intention of having his own locality slighted.

While Mr. Watts was preaching in Dixville, Quebec, the County Agricultural Association offered a prize for the best home garden, and the coveted honor went to the pastor. Every year, without fail, Mr. Watts has a garden. He'd rather till the soil than beat a trout stream, and he's powerful fond of fishing, too.

Mr. Watts is justly proud of his five daughters, four of whom have benefited by higher education while the youngest is a High School Senior. A young son met with a tragic death by falling over a cliff.

Rev. L. G. Perry of Clinton, Me., a former pastor, will be guest speaker Sunday at the Littlefield Memorial Church for the 10:30 service and again at 7:15. Special music will be provided at both services. Sunday School meets at 11:45 with classes for all ages. Young Peoples' meeting at 6 o'clock with Perley Bartlett as leader. Mid-week praise and prayer service Tuesday at 7:30.

At St. Peter's Church (Episcopal), Rev. E. O. Kenyon, rector, the services for tomorrow will be appropriate for the 12th Sunday after Trinity: Matins at 7:10; Holy Communion at 7:30; Holy Eucharist and sermon at 10:30; Vespers at 7:30; Daily Mass at 7:30 except on Tuesday at 7 a. m.

Rev. Dr. Harry C. Leach, of Hacksack, N. J., will be the guest preacher at The First Baptist Church on Sunday, "The Life Abundant" being the subject of his sermon at 10:30 a. m. Charles W. Wilson will be the guest soloist for the day. The church school with a class for every age group is held at noon. All young people are invited to meet with the Christian Endeavorers at 6:15 when Miss Dorothy Sylvester will be the leader. "The Greatness of God's Love" will be the sermon-topic of Rev. Dr. Leach at the people's 63-minute evening service, which begins at 7:30 and is opened by the prelude and "big sing." The happy prayer and praise service will convene as usual at 7:30 on Tuesday evening, with Mrs. Evelyn McKusik leading.

At the Congregational Church the Sunday morning service of worship, 10:30, will be devoted to the observance of Labor Sunday. The pastor, Rev. Roy A. Welker, has chosen as his text and theme "My Father Worketh..." The delegates from the Comrades of the Way now enjoying the annual Summer conference of Young people from Maine Congregational Churches, held at Camp Manitou, write that "they are having lots of fun and learning a lot at the same time." The session is held at Camp Medomak and will close next Monday morning.

"Thy Kingdom Come" will be the theme of the sermon by Charles Ellis Sunday morning at the Methodist Church.

Holy Laws in Today's Life

Boake Carter has written much of late, in his column about "God's Holy Laws Applicable to Today's Life." "In the prayer book we ask almost daily forgiveness as we intone, 'We have offended against the Holy Laws.' We mumble those words day by day, year in and year out, but who stops to find out what those laws really are and where they may be found? They are in the five Books of Moses Genesis to Deuteronomy."

Mr. Carter's summation of these laws and his apt application of them to today's problems is most interesting. Moses was the great law giver and all jurisprudence is founded upon the Holy Laws given to him on Mount Sinai by God Himself. My brother has recently made me a present of the Master Bible. I should never have felt I could have afforded it, but as I study it I am convinced that no one could so well invest $12.50. Any young man or woman who believes in God, who would build his or her education around this Book gaining the daily experiences of life in the light of its teaching, would be taking the most valuable step in the building of character. It contains among other valuable features a complete section devoted to these Holy Laws under the main headings of the Ten Commandments.

Boake Carter did me a great favor in his column and this Master of all Bibles places at my disposal a quick index to this revised statutes of these Holy Laws.

—William A. Holman

"Christ Jesus" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon that will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Aug. 31. The Golden Text is: "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth" (Romans 1:16). The citations from the Bible include the following passages: "Behold, my servant, whom I uphold; mine elect, in whom my soul delighteth; I have put my spirit upon him: he shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles. Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing." (Isaiah 42:1, 35:5, 6).

Rockland Man Proves His Ability With Pen At Age of 92

Winner of second prize in the Three Quarter Century Club essay contest was Simon H. Hall of 100 Park street, Rockland, who is still active and alert despite his 92 years. And this is what he wrote.

To the President and Members of the Three Quarter Century Club:

"What I Would Do"

I would have Congress pass a law forbidding any foreigner entering the U. S. unless he would sign up to the Constitution its requirements and I would further drive every foreigner, who has not become an American citizen, out of the country to leave the U. S. immediately "Ala Hitler." I would round up every spy and line them up against the wall and shoot them. We have plenty of men in this country to do all the work without any more immigrants. The country is too free.

The foreigner enters the U. S. to better their conditions, and what do they do? It is said of the Irish who came over on a steamer, arriving in New York, "Have you got a government here?" to his neighbor. His reply "Sure we have," well he said, "I am again it." This is a sample of many of them who

MAINE IN WASHINGTON

(From the Office of Senator Ralph O. Brewster)

Several hundred citizens of Maine have reason to rejoice that the Government at Washington has finally decided to be somewhat hard-boiled with Japan. Japanese crabmeat has been a tremendous factor in the American market.

Some enterprising citizens of Maine along the Maine coast have developed a crabmeat industry which is giving employment to many hundreds of Maine people and furnishing a product that is infinitely superior from a hygienic product of the Japanese crab factories scattered all over the Pacific.

Strong representations have been made regarding the unfairness of the Japanese competition for some time by the Senators and Representatives from the State of Maine. This last week the Tariff Commission finally took action and recommended a 50 percent increase in the tariff on imported Japanese crabmeat to the President and the President promptly imposed the increase. Increases of this character in tariff schedules have been very rare now for many years and this seems pretty clearly a result of the desire to show Japan that the United States means business.

For this action citizens of Maine may be profoundly grateful since it affords possible employment to Maine citizens and solves to that extent our economic problems. Tribute must also be paid to the enterprise and ingenuity and courage of Maine citizens who have sponsored this enterprise along our Maine coasts.

The gasoline situation has brought home with tremendous emphasis something of the problems that lie ahead. This column has been hammering for two months at the importance of Maine looking out for itself in this fuel situation and not depending upon any other authority in either New England or Washington to realize what our peculiar problems are here in Maine both in the Summer and in the Winter.

In the Summer we have a tremendous influx of visitors numbering more than a million with the resultant enormous increase in our consumption of gasoline. In the Winter we have a very cold, long season with difficult transportation facilities during the most severe Winter months and this means that we must get our fuel supplies in early and that they must be most adequate. Our industries and our homes are vitally dependent upon these supplies and the most vigorous action must be taken by everyone concerned to see that Maine's problem is not ignored.

Maine has reason to be gratified that some concessions were made in our favor as a result of the vigorous representations which

MAINE IN WASHINGTON

(From the Office of Senator Ralph O. Brewster)

Several hundred citizens of Maine have reason to rejoice that the Government at Washington has finally decided to be somewhat hard-boiled with Japan. Japanese crabmeat has been a tremendous factor in the American market.

Some enterprising citizens of Maine along the Maine coast have developed a crabmeat industry which is giving employment to many hundreds of Maine people and furnishing a product that is infinitely superior from a hygienic product of the Japanese crab factories scattered all over the Pacific.

Strong representations have been made regarding the unfairness of the Japanese competition for some time by the Senators and Representatives from the State of Maine. This last week the Tariff Commission finally took action and recommended a 50 percent increase in the tariff on imported Japanese crabmeat to the President and the President promptly imposed the increase. Increases of this character in tariff schedules have been very rare now for many years and this seems pretty clearly a result of the desire to show Japan that the United States means business.

Lakewood Theatre

Arthur Franz

As their next to the last offering of their 41st season, the Lakewood players will present Philip Barry's charming comedy of marriage, "Paris Bound," through the week of Sept. 8 with a matinee Saturday, Sept. 13. Heading the cast of "Paris Bound" will be Day Eliot and Blair Davies.

"Paris Bound" is an extraordinarily keen study of marriage. Through all of its delightful scenes runs an interesting problem; to what an extent and under what circumstances should a young married couple continue to live together if one of the two is unfaithful?

Day Eliot and Blair Davies will have the roles of the young married couple while Ann Mason and Jack Tyler will appear as the two responsible for their almost broken marriage.

"Out of the Frying Pan" the current attraction at the Lakewood Theatre, will be given its final Lakewood performances this week-end including a matinee Saturday, Sept. 6 at 2.30.

Films Of Bird Life

Natural Color Movie At Camden Sept. 5—Benefit Of Red Cross Work Room

Films of bird life in technicolor, photographed by John Humphreys Storer of Boston, which will be shown at Camden Opera House Sept. 5, at 8:30 p. m.

The proceeds are to be donated to the Red Cross workroom. Storer, leading pioneer in motion picture color photography of wild life, is particularly devoting his activities to birds, and emphasizing the need of protection of certain species. His pictures of Pelicans, Spoonbills, Egrets, Cranes and other of the larger water birds, are outstanding in their excellence and artistic quality.

It is interesting to know that Mr. Storer takes thousands of feet of films which he never uses, his standard being the best or nothing. These films can be shown only a limited number of times as wear and tear soon render them imperfect. The films which Mr. Storer will show Sept. 5 are perfect but short-lived since duplication of colored reels is as yet in an experimental stage and not sufficiently developed to be absolutely satisfactory.

Mr. Storer's activities have taken him from the Florida Keys to Gaspe Peninsula, and from Oregon to Mexico.

The tickets are reasonably priced and may be procured at the Selectmen's office, beginning next Tuesday.

REALM OF MUSIC

by Gladys St. Clair Heistad

The seventh public, and final, concert of the New England Music Camp at Sidney, on the Belgrade Lakes, was given Sunday, and it was my pleasure to be "among those present." It was a glorious late Summer day, with the lake and the sky vying each other in blueness, and the trees encircling the bowl richly green after the recent rain. In appreciation of the beautiful weather and the music planned particularly for this final concert, more than a thousand people were present to pay tribute to the splendid work that has been accomplished at the Camp during its eight weeks' season.

The first half of the program was given by the Camp Orchestra directed by Albert W. Wassall. Their numbers were: "Thornrose Waltz from 'The Sleeping Beauty'" by Tchaikovsky; and Sibelius' "Tone Poem, 'Finlandia'"—both excellently done, with attention to shadings, attacks and balance. Gerard Haft, of the faculty played with exquisite artistry, Popper's "Hungarian Rhapsody" and Saint-Saens' "The Swan" as violoncello solos, with Miss Edwanda Metz as accompanist, also of the teaching staff.

A feature of particular interest was the Allegretto molto vivace movement of Mendelssohn's "Violin Concerto in E Minor," played by Leopold LaFosse, a 13-year-old student of Worcester (Mass.) Classical High School. Young LaFosse played with amazing technical skill and with the poise of a veteran.

The other portion of the program was devoted to the Camp Band, under the direction of Paul E. Wiggin, and embraced numbers by Churchill, Rachmaninoff, Smetsky, Beisterling, Irving Berlin and Moussorgsky. John Robie, one of the camp students played with marked success Pryor's concert waltz, "Thoughts of Love" as a trombone solo. As a surprise number Mr. Wiggin called "Impromptu" one of the students in conducting to lead an extra number, the young man leading his fellow students with understanding and winning a big hand from the audience.

During intermission a collection was taken, as has been done through the season, the proceeds from which go to the scholarship fund to make it possible for some boy or girl, or both, to attend the camp next year. A very satisfactory sum was realized at this concert and much enthusiasm was shown. It really was exciting to see such fine musical bodies, both orchestra and band having at least 70 to 75 members, and to realize that with the exception of the teaching staff scattered in the various sections to steady the situation, shall we say, all the players were youngsters still in the teens. The girl at the tympani attracted unusual attention by her skill and we learned that she had been awarded the prize for the most pronounced improvement during the season.

It is hoped that the camp will be able to function continuously. It affords not only instruction under capable teachers but an opportunity to live under healthful conditions with careful supervision.

George Engles, managing director of NBC Concert Service, has received a letter from Henry Johansen, husband of Kirsten Flagstad, famous Norwegian soprano, re-affirming news previously received through newspaper channels that Mme. Flagstad will not return to America until the war is over.

"Under the present circumstances, of course, no one can say when it will be possible to return," Mr. Johansen wrote. "I can only hope that it will not last too long. Please tell our friends that we are living a quiet life here and at the present we have little disturbance from this world war. Madame Flagstad has hurt her right hand, so she cannot write or make use of this hand for two or three weeks. With best regards, Henry Johansen." The letter, was dated July 9 and was mailed from Kristiansand where Mme. Flagstad and her husband have been accustomed to spend the Summer.

There has been a rumor that Mme. Flagstad had turned Nazi, and in view of this, it was interesting to read an editorial which appeared in a recent issue of a Worcester (Mass.) paper. Quoting in part:

"Mme. Flagstad is the world's greatest singer of Wagnerian roles. The Germans are proud of their Wagner, and Hitler has associated Nazism in an abstruse, mystical way with the operas of the Ring. Nothing would be more natural for the Germans, than to wish to hear the superlative singer of this day sing in 'Tristan and Isolde,' and the other great Wagnerian operas. There is little doubt that the Nazis would be lavish with honors and attentions to Mme. Flagstad if she would sing at the Berlin Opera House. It is almost certain, however, that Mme. Flagstad has refused to co-operate. If she had consented to sing, the Nazis would have announced the fact if only to pique her American public, and various persons with whom she has made contracts for the coming season. It would be a feather in their cap to capture the greatest of opera singers, who remarked, when she left this country, that she could always lose her voice if anyone tried to force her to sing. Evidently Mme. Flagstad had conveniently lost her voice. Unfortunately, the Nazis can make life unbearable for her and her family, and, as one of her friends has suggested, she may sing for the Germans to escape their punishment."

Census figures show that 335 out of a total of 182,651 state and local units of government were responsible for 71 percent of the total state and local public debt in 1940. Each of the 335 governmental units had a debt above 5 million dollars.

A TALE OF HERCULES AND JUNO

Here is the proud "Hercules" shown in active service in 1936, at the age of 58 years under the name of "Victoria" on the Hudson River.—Photo courtesy Tracey I. Brooks.

One of the romantic legends of Penobscot waters is the tale of "Hercules" and "Juno" dating around 1880. Hercules was an extraordinarily capable tow boat for her day and apparently spent most of her time chaperoning the beautiful barge "Juno" around Penobscot Bay in the moonlight. "Juno" for her part was a large, white painted barge with two doubly sure, changed her name to "Victoria." There must have been fickle blood in "Victoria" too, for she shortly made another change, this time to Hudson River waters where she finally settled down, gaining an enviable reputation and fine friends as a member of the great Cornell Ronan tow boat fleet. She passed into the ownership of C. W. Morse in the decks, a widely famed ornate staircase and beautifully finished floors for dancing. There were dancing parties, orchestras and romance with "Juno" towed far astern of her escort to avoid any dangers from boiler explosion. A fine picture of "Juno" laying at the uncompleted Tillson's Wharf was presented in these columns Feb. 8, 1941. The barge was owned by Gen. Davis Tillson.

Today "Hercules" steps into the picture thanks to Capt. William O. Benson of Kingston, N. Y. and Tracey I. Brooks of Rensselaer, N. Y.

The big tug was launched in 1873 at Camden, N. J. and came at once to Penobscot waters, a fine figure of a boat 82x17x8.8 measuring 77 gross tons with a fine 15, 30x22 compound engine.

late nineties and came to make her permanent home at Kingston, N. Y. as a part of the now justly celebrated Cornell Steamboat Company fleet, numbering recently 90 boats. Along with her in the Cornell family were "Bismark" and "Ralph Renss." both from the Penobscot.

Victoria floats today at Rondont creek, Kingston, along with several other tugs, laid up for various reasons. "Victoria" is minus her boiler at the moment, her pilot house having been lifted off and dropped in place of the ripped out boiler section when a replacement boiler was condemned five years ago. She is sound of hull and engine in spite of her 63 years and with the present upturn of business will undoubtedly see service once more.

THEY COMPARED NOTES

A Jay See and E. H. Philbrick Get Their Heads Together

Rockland, Aug. 29.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— I had the pleasure of meeting A. J. See recently. He called on me and we had a pleasant talk, comparing notes on many oldtime matters. Yes, the Gay boys had a store in Rankin block; also one down on The Point. Al. Hahn's widow kept their books. The late Frank Packard drove their delivery team, and sometimes gave me a lift up north when I worked on The Point.

Justin Richardson kept a store where the E. O. Philbrick Garage now is, and we often saw him there reading the paper by the light of two kerosene lamps.

A. J. See tells how he put the bone on the pile "Three cents please" but he doesn't tell how many times he put the same bone on for "Three cents please". He takes the free man to task for getting mixed a little sometimes. He got Phil Lane's boys mixed with Arnie and Bill Erskine's. Well I believe Nelt Lane and Arnie got mixed up one time in a little fistie encounter. Perhaps that is what mixed him up a little. He won't allow A. J. See to look up history. He must write from memory.

EAST LIBERTY

George McLain and Percy White took the Pride boys to their home in Abbot, Friday after several weeks' stay at the McLain home. Ralph Reynolds and family have returned to Beverly, Mass. Their daughter Arlene visited in town for a few days the past week.

Elmer Davis and family have moved to the Will Prescott place in South Montville which they recently bought from George Harvey.

Earland Esancy has bought and moved into the Charles Kirkeys house which was formerly occupied by Laurence Oxtan.

Miles Stevens of Skowhegan is visiting his daughter Mrs. Lloyd Colby.

Word has been received here of the death Aug. 23 at her home in Milton, Mass., of Mrs. Forrest E. Howes. She was Abbie May Morse of South Montville, but had resided nearly all of her married life in Massachusetts. Besides her husband, she leaves a son, Robert and a daughter Mildred, also two brothers, Arthur Morse of Belfast and Everett Morse of Massachusetts.

Her remains will be taken to South Montville for burial. Committal services will be held today at 2 o'clock.

PLEASURES IN WILD LIFE

To the woods we go for rest from distracted and tired nerves and body. There we find peace and pleasures in the wild life that steals near us in fear and watchfulness lest we harm it. A bright-eyed chipmunk may win our attention and we can learn much from these little fellows if we but give them our close attention. Then a squirrel, much like the chipmunk, and yet of vastly different ways of life opens our eyes and receptive thought to an all wise Providence who was mindful of all our needs.

It is possible to make pets of a number of varieties of birds and wild animals. We are not bound to dogs and cats for pets or friendly companions. Ducks and geese, and even rats and mice, are known to be friends of men when properly handled, as well as numerous other animals of sea and land. Moral: Show yourself friendly at all times and in all places and the result will be advantageous to you through life.

Tender Hibiscus landed the annual supply of oil Aug. 20. Capt. A. C. Faulkingham made a short call. Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Foster of Windham and Portland visited at the Light ten days recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Vassar L. Quimby of Bucks Harbor were week-end visitors.

Nights and mornings are beginning to feel quite fallish. The Summers seem much too short.

Lobster fishermen are very plentiful in this vicinity which makes company.

F. O. Hill, Mrs. R. T. Sterling, Mrs. Charles Sterling, Misses Elizabeth and Marion Sterling motored to Rumford last Saturday afternoon, calling on Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sterling and young son Peter Elliot.

The Hills, Mrs. Sterling, Mrs. Dow and party motored to St. George recently to attend the annual gathering of the Gilchrist family. The day was perfect and enjoyed by those covering the miles from Portland to St. George. There was a large number in attendance—a very jovial crowd. What more could one ask?

The annual Monhegan Island yacht race took place last Saturday with the starting line off Portland Head. Last year crowds flocked to Fort Williams and Portland Head to watch the yachts off to a good start and our own party at the station was an unusually good number. This year, our own number could be counted on two fingers. Looking along the Fort bank there was none to count. Just as the gun was fired for the yachts to line up, three persons had gained admittance at the gate. There is something alluring about sailing craft and no doubt the usual crowds would have gathered this year if it had been possible. We surely hope another year will bring to our distinguished Portland Head Light the usual crowds and gaiety of yore to witness the starting of the yacht race.

Guests at the family picnic gathering Thursday were Arthur Harlow, Miss Martin and Mrs. W. C. Dow, joined later in the evening by W. C. Dow.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Sterling and Mrs. Hill were guests of the Dows

Spittoons Vanish

But This Versatile Steamboat Captain Knew How To Find Substitute

Spittoons which once graced every office, public place where men gathered, and some homes, are fast becoming a rarity. Some were made of brass and lovingly polished to a brilliant lustre by their proud owners, others were of china, and some of common tin, but their day is passing, as one skipper of a certain bay steamer can testify. He had for years kept one of the common tin variety in his wheelhouse, but, time, salt air, and use made it give up the ghost a few months ago and it rusted out.

A frantic search was made of Rockland stores one morning to get another before sailing time, but, alas, no one stocked them, not even the mail order houses. Something had to be done and done quickly for a voyage across the bay without a spittoon meant no "chawin'" tobacco on the trip and that had never happened and never could, according to the skipper.

Another round of stores was made and in the last one the Captain's keen eye spotted a quart size bean pot and the die was cast. That bean pot and the die was cast. That bean pot. It now holds the place of honor in the wheelhouse and it is said that Capt. — hasn't missed it once. Let the seas run heavy or calm the bean pot is there every time.
